

Want faster results? ⚡

The mindset stays the foundation. But if you want the scale to move faster, here are the strongest accelerators. Pick one or two, do not throw them all on at once.

🕒 The big one: 16:8

Eat all your food inside an 8-hour window and give your body the other 16 hours off. Easy version: last meal by 18:00 to 19:00, skip breakfast, break the fast at lunch. Coffee or tea on its own, no sugar, is fine and does not break the fast. It is head training as much as body training: your body relearns how to burn its own fat. On medication or with a health condition? Check with your doctor first.

🍷 Lower carbs, higher protein, in one line. Ease right off the bread, rice, pasta and sugar, and build every plate on protein (fish, chicken, eggs, a little meat) with plenty of vegetables, and go easy on the oil. Protein and veg keep you full for hours and protect your muscle while the fat comes off.

Beat the morning hunger 🔑

The morning glass. First thing, on an empty stomach: a glass of water (about 250 ml) with a squeeze of lemon, a small pinch of cinnamon, a little cayenne, and if you like a tiny pinch of salt.

- ☐ Water is the real win: you wake up dehydrated and thirst feels like hunger, so a big glass takes the edge off.
- ☐ Cinnamon helps steady your blood sugar (less spike and crash) and feeds the good gut bacteria.
- ☐ Cayenne gives a small warming kick that can nudge circulation and dull the appetite.
- ☐ Lemon makes the water easy to drink; the pinch of salt is a few electrolytes for the fast.

Coffee afterwards is fine. None of these is magic on its own, but stacked together on an empty stomach they turn the morning hunger down, so the 16:8 window is far easier to hold.